AMERICAN SUITORS IDEAL OF SIAMESE

Get Impressions From Movies, Says Princess.

Boston.—The romantic ideal of the average Siamese girl is an American sweetheart. She has gained her knowledge of American men chiefly from the movies, and the few travelers and traders to the Malay peninsula of which the kingdom of Siam is a part.

The authority for this is the princess of Siam. She is just plain "Mrs. Makdoll Songkla" in Boston while her husband is studying medicine at the Harvard Medical school, but in Siam she is a princess royal. Her husband is the brother of the present king, and if his brother next in succession to the throne dies, "Mrs. Songkla," who does her own housework in Boston, will be the next queen of Siam.

But she doesn't want to be a queen she remarked in an interview at her suite at Hotel Lincolnshire, where she is staying with her husband and two children until her housekeeping apartment is ready for her occupancy the first of the month.

"Being a king would interfere with my husband's profession. He is studying to be a doctor and a king couldn't make a good doctor. Oh, no, he must never be king; oh, n-o-o-o!" the little Siamese princess spoke her last "never" with emphasis.

"We traveled all over Europe and we never told anyone who we were. It's too much bother. No, I do not care to meet European royalty."

She was asked about the native costume in Siam. Did the women wear much jewelry for adornment?

"Well, all women like to look nice. The Siamese girls like beads," she touched the string of pearls on her neck. "But in Bangkok, the Siamese women see American jewelry and they like that best. It is so hot there American clothes are impossible. When in Siam I never wear these clothes," and she indicated her costume with a broad sweep of her hands.

"I wear just a little skirt, nothing more than a big scarf pinned around my waist, which reached to my ankles, and a little top vest. That is all; no, no underwear. None of the Siamese women wear any more.

"The silks are very beautiful, and although the dress wouldn't look well here, it is the only costume for Siam. Sport clothes, you know, do not look well in a gold-and-rose ballroom. Perfumes, oh, yes, the Siamese girls like them, but because of the heat, rouge and powder are not popular there. The country people do not know about such things."

Eighty Army Men Average 25 Years of Service

Washington.—Eighty men of the Tenth cavalry and Twenty-fifth infantry, both colored, who have given a total of more than 2,000 years of service to the army, lined up before Senator Ralph Cameron of Arizona recently at a review at Fort Huachuca, Ariz. The senator was impressed by the long service of many men of the two regiments and asked that all with more than twenty years to their credit step out. When he questioned the four-score who replied he found that there was an average of more than twenty-five years' service in the group.

Man's Face "Growing" on His Tombstone

Ashland, Ky.—The outlines of a man's face are appearing on the tombstone over the grave of John Folta in the graveyard on the farm of Nando Selby, near Summit, this county. People living near the burial ground are excited.

Some days ago there appeared outlines of a human head, then came eye, nose and mouth, worked out in shadowy lines on the stone. Then it became so plain as to be seen some distance.

The man buried under the stone was killed in an accident in 1891.

YAQUI, BORN FIGHTER, ALWAYS ON WARPATH

Indians of Mexico Gradually Being Exterminated.

Washington.—The Yaqui Indians of southern Sonora, Mexico, again on the war path, and the fertile country in which they have torn up railway tracks in the last few days are described in the following communication to the National Geographic society from Herbert Corey, who recently visited the region.

"Guaymas is on the edge of the Yaqui country," writes Mr. Corey. "We had been conscious of the Yaqui all the way South, of course, for in Sonora he forms the background to every conversation; but it was here that he stepped into the foreground.

"When things go wrong in Yaquiland, he is apt to beleaguer Guaymas. It is not so very long ago that no one dared walk out of the dangerous end of town. The Yaquis have burned railroad bridges and held up railroad trains and murdered passengers.

One Sixth Original Strength.

"At one time the Yaquis may have numbered 30,000 souls; now there may be 5,000 in all. Their home was in the fertile valleys of the Yaqui and Mayo rivers, with the hills behind as hunting grounds. They were as riverless on the trail as the Apaches or the Navajos, and, despite three hundred years of contact with a more or less diluted civilization, are today about what they were when the first Spaniard came to Sonora.

"They live in shacks made of brush, prefer the meat of burros to beef, and preserve jealously the purity of the Yaqui blood. They are religious after their own fashion, mingling the rites of the Catholic church with those of their own barbaric faith.

"Most Americans who know the Yaqui say that if he had been let alone he would have let the white men alone. But he owned fertile valleys and mine-rich mountains. The history of our own West teems with analogous cases. The miners and the farmers established themselves in his territory, and the Yaqui declared war. The technical honors seem to have gone to the Yaqui.

"It is true that at one time mines were opened everywhere in his mountains and the fat river bottoms were taken from him; but the troops sent against him were cut up time after time.

"After a battle the Yaquis disappeared without leaving a sign. The bronco' Yaqui became the tame Yaqui overnight. He traded breech clout for the blue overalls of honest labor.

"Of course, that sort of thing could not be endured by the Mexican government. Without discussing the rights and wrongs, the fact remained that the Yaqui stood in the path of progress. President Diaz at first tried to conciliate and then to defeat them, and finally resorted to a policy of extermination.

"A Yaqui scalp had a cash value over the counter. I have talked with a man who sat at breakfast with a Mexican general to whom was reported the capture of 200 Yaqui braves. Without leaving the table, he ordered that half be shot and the other half deported to Yucatan, where laborers were needed on the sisal plantations.

"One hears in Sonora that not all the ships that sailed for Yucatan voyaged farther than the first shark's fishing ground.

Helped Madero Revolution.

"Diaz had cowed the Yaquis if he had not completely subjugated them. The river valleys were given over to the plow and the prospectors roamed at will through the mountains.

"Then Francisco Madero, practical idealist, enlisted them in his fight against Diaz, and the Yaquis discovered that they could play a part in politics.

"The Yaquis have been pursuing a policy of more or less peaceful penetration into what was once their own country.

"'We are coming home. Get out,' the Yaquis have said to many a Mexican whose family had lived on a Yaqui valley ranch for generations. Usually the Mexican gets.

"The Yaquis are riding nearer the superb rice farms of Cajame, operated by Americans through sheer grit and stubbornness, during years when the Mexican government could not protect them, and their own government would not. The American settlements at Esperanza, where one of the greatest modern irrigation works in Mexico is in operation, are likewise being visited. Not threatened; just visited."

Rooster Chases Hens, Mothers 100 Chicks

Norfolk, Neb.—A rooster with a keen sense of paternal duties is acting as mother to 100 chicks in the back yard of the G. V. Madsen home on South Ninth street. A few weeks ago he decided to enact a mother's role, and promptly proceeded to entice the major part of several flocks that had been cared for by hens with groups of 12 to 15 chickens.

He was successful in his allurements, and also in chasing off the indignant hens he has bereft of their progeny. They stood around "jawing" about it for several days, but evidently gave it up as a bad job and paid no further attention to their recreant offspring.

The rooster shirks none of the responsibilities of motherhood. He calls his brood to him as evening approaches, stretches his wings and with no traces of awkwardness enacts the role of a hovering mother.

And he's a regular "he" rooster, ed. He greets the dawn with the clarion call of his breed and practices it at times during the day.

PLANS NATIONWIDE STATE PARK CHAIN

Conference Seeks a Way to Carry Out New Law.

Washington.—A chain of state parks to supplement the national parks is the aim of the national conference on state parks, of which John Barton Payne is president.

Such a system of public playgrounds is made possible under a recent act of congress permitting the states to acquire unreserved public lands for this purpose.

A survey made by the conference shows that nineteen states have such lands, the aggregate acreage being 195,000,000, lying mainly west of the Mississippi river. Land is available, however, for parks in three southern states, Alabama, Florida and Louisiana.

The joint committee on recreational survey of federal lands has made a study of specific tracts which possess features of value for local purposes. It has picked out thirty for eighty-eight units containing 2,500,000 acres, of which thirty-nine units, embracing 1,500,000 acres, have been withdrawn from other disposal by the general land office pending action by the states concerned under the new law.

Many recreational units have been reported and officials of the national conference declare that in Utah particularly there is beautiful, almost magnificent, scenery in public domain.

One aggressive advocate is that state parks be established on the sites of the proposed Wonderland National park in South Dakota and the proposed Roosevelt National park in North Dakota. Congress has already repeatedly to approve bills creating these additional national parks.

Officials of the national conference assert that these could easily be made state parks, comparable to the Custer state park in South Dakota, to the Palisades interstate, the Adirondack and Catskill state parks in New York and to the Redwood state parks in California.

The public land office has withdrawn a number of areas in Utah from public entry pending action by the state, while in Nevada the governor has had eleven areas withdrawn. In Alabama a tract in Little May's gulf, which is very scenic and contains practically unperfected for a number of years, has been withdrawn awaiting action by the state.

Credit Men Recover $396,280 in 15 Months

New York.—Recoveries in fraudulent failures investigated by the National Association of Credit Men in the last fifteen months amount to $396,280, according to J. H. Tregoe executive manager of the association.

Since the association began to raise its credit protection fund of $1,500,000 in June, 1925, it has brought about the conviction of 122 commercial crooks.

"As a direct result of the department's activities, according to careful compilation," Mr. Tregoe said, "there were recoveries in the cases investigated and for the estates concerned of $396,279.73. These recoveries are more than the entire cost of operating the department since its active organization.

Salmon Fishing in Great Lakes Forecast

Madison, Wis.—Salmon fishing in the great Lakes is a possibility in the future.

The state conservation commission is experimenting with the propagation of salmon to determine whether the fish can be made to inhabit Lake Superior in sufficient numbers to make canning an industry in this section.

Only a few salmon have been drawn from the lake in the nets of fishermen, but they are sufficient to give B. O. Webster, state superintendent of fisheries, hope that eventually salmon will be plentiful in the inland waters.

Two hundred thousand salmon of "fingerling" size have been planted in Lake Superior annually for five years. Only a few of the fish were expected to reappear in the lakes, due to the comparatively small number planted.

Contracts to Be Let for Modernizing Sing Sing

Albany, N. Y.—New York state's century-old penal institution is to be modernized after 20 years of more or less intermittent effort; on the part of the government.

Sullivan W. Jones, state architect, announced that contracts will be awarded in December for completion of the new Sing Sing prison.

State Architect Jones described the proposed new Sing Sing improvements, which are to be financed from the $160,000,000 bond issue and which are designed to replace the old prison with a modern sanitary penal institution. In part he said:

"The buildings for which contracts will be let in December are two cell blocks, providing 1,022 cells, an assembly hall which serves also as a chapel and an administration building. Each cell will be equipped with lights, running water and all ventilated, [illegible] new buildings and three to be built there will be a total of 1,470 cells.

"As soon as the new buildings are completed the old cell block will be demolished and the remaining buildings [illegible] so that the entire area of the industrial current.

"The assembly hall has been designed to seat 1,200.

"The entire group of new buildings is surrounded by a 24-foot reinforced concrete wall. The new wall is equipped with [illegible] to harass at all dangerous points and will be fitted with flood lighting. In the event of an alarm being given the entire prison yard may be flooded with brilliant light, leaving no place in darkness where prisoners might hide."

Need Ladder to Pick Corn in Massachusetts

Athol, Mass.—A ladder is required to pick corn on the farm of W. E. Blackmer in North Orange, so high are the stalks. Four of the stalks put on exhibition in a local hardware store were 14 feet high each and weighed a total of 28 pounds.

FOREST VIEW

After the rain Sunday and Sunday night the wind is cold and whistling around the corners and in the trees. It reminds us that 'old Mr Winter' is here with his cold and shivering days.

The rain will delay the farmers in sewing their wheat, but the corn is being gotten up.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Ford, son, Jim, daughter, Bernice, and little George, spent Sunday recently with their daughter in Lynchburg. Miss Bernice remained.

Many in this vicinity attended the Appomattox Fair and enjoyed meeting old friends, shaking hands and talking. We hope there will always be an Appomattox Fair.

Miss Erna Woolridge, who has accepted a job in Lynchburg spent last week-end with her grandfather, T. J. Nash.

Mr. and Mrs J. B. Marshall have returned from Ohio, where he has had a position the past summer, to their old home near Spring Mills. We are glad to have them back.

Mrs. L. Laughlin and sister, Miss Bernice Ford and Mr. Sowell, all of Lynchburg, spent last Sunday with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Ford.

We are glad little Richard Nash is better.
